Anthropology is the study of humankind, past and present: our origins and the development of cultural behavior and biological attributes. Our anthropology degrees prepare you for field work or graduate studies in anthropology or archaeology. This article documents the archaeological occurrence of bison (Bison bison) on the Snake River Plain. Evidence from thirty-two Paleoindian and Archaic sites suggests that use of bison occurred on the western and eastern Plain. Studies of selected reaches of the Weber River, Davis-Weber Canal, and the Ogden Valley Canal in Davis and Weber Counties, Utah, were made to determine gains or losses of flow in those reaches. Three to five sets of seepage measurements were made on the river and each canal during Ogden Canyon EA Cultural Resource Inventory December Utah State Project No. ULIs LSD Technical Report No. ii Two sites (42WB and 42WB) are also located within the inventory area/APE. Both sites are active bridges, architectural resources, and should not have originally been recorded as archaeological sites. The Weber River Basin, shown on the map on the cover of the study, is the part of Utah that uses the water that accumulates in the Weber River drainage. While most of the basin drains into the Weber River system, an area of Davis County that drains into the Great Salt Lake is included in the basin because the water supply of the area comes from the Weber River.
