The overall building economics are fundamental on the rationale for using steel construction in the commercial building sector, where the market share for steel has been consistently 65 . Multi-Storey Steel Buildings is one of two design guides. The second design guide is Single-Storey Steel Buildings. The two design guides have been produced in the framework of the European project Facilitating the market development for sections in industrial halls and low rise buildings (SECHALO) RFS2-CT.

The steel frame itself represents only a small part of the overall cost of a building. However, how the frame is designed and detailed may affect the cost of more expensive components it interfaces with. Steel is the material par excellence when it comes to inventing new structures and forms. All solutions are possible, from the very simplest to the most challenging. Steel can be used for small buildings as well as large structures, for routine construction projects and those subject to complex urban constraints. multistorey commercial steel buildings, multipurpose steel buildings, steel building, aircraft hangars, hangar doors, grandstands, design, high bay warehouses, multi-storey buildings, church buildings, storage, car parks, industrial metal buildings, commercial and military buildings, steelbuildings and bridges made and erected by Reid Steel Buildings UK and Worldwide.
